Success Cases and Testimonials of participants

Shubham Rawat, wants to start his own food truck named, "The Bakers Tables." Shubham joined an Entrepreneurship Development Program (EDP), where he learned a lot about how to run a business there he gained knowledge about important stuff like planning, understanding the market, and how to manage finance. He's really eager to serve in the hilly regions of Uttarakhand at initial phase and then expand the business to various other states of Bharat.

Anjali Rawat's venture, "Study Point," tuition classes aims to help students excel academically, Anjali's passion for education and dedication is such that she wants to transform the way of learning the concepts in a creative way. We think that "Study Point" will be a place where students can flourish and reach their academical goals under Anjali's guidance.

Nikita Rawat has a vision to start her poultry venture, "Bhoomi Poultry Farm". Nikita's commitment and intrest for the poultry business is exemplary. Her focus is on ethical farming practices to ensure the well-being of her birds. With her dedication and promise to provide top-quality poultry products, we hope that Bhoomi Poultry Farm will soon become a go-to destination for fresh and naturally raised poultry.

Kavita wants to open a Departmental and general store which will perfectly align with today's shopping trends offering a wide variety of products under one roof with convenience being a top priority for modern shoppers, her store will provide a hassle-free shopping experience in the major cities of uttarakhand that caters to busy lifestyles. Kavita's initiative in meeting these contemporary needs is commendable, and we are confident her store will thrive in today's market.

CHALLENGES

EDPs are a potential solution to boost entrepreneurship and also contribute to the motivation of prospective entrepreneurs. People assume that EDPs will solve all the issues of entrepreneurship. Lack of understanding and non-clarity of the objectives limit their growth. There are the following challenges, misconceptions or myths:

- Most budding entrepreneurs lacking cognitive part of the entrepreneurship.
- Crises of resources in developing entrepreneurship eco system in hilly terrain.
- Biggest challenge is the lacking knowledge of legal aspects of business.
- Challenge is to provide continued support in Marketing of inputs and Marketing of outputs.
- Most prospective entrepreneurs believe that mere joining an entrepreneurial development programme will solve all their problems.
- People consider EDPs as training programs, whereas training is one part of the EDPs. It also covers other aspects of entrepreneurship.
- People often link the success of EDPs with the number of participants. There is a myth about EDPs that higher the number, better the EDP.
- Participants think that the success of EDPs is the sole responsibility of trainers, motivators, and organisers.
- Huge financial support to organisers and trainers. Whereas, these are national income and public money.

Waste the resources, as they belong to the government, and the government is responsible for managing all the resources
